

The Leo Baeck College Lehrhaus programme is designed to promote the development and growth of adult Jewish learning for 21st Century Jews.

“ I'm not sure what I expected when I signed up for the four-week online course on 'Reading troubling texts from Torah' as part of the Lehrhaus programme at Leo Baeck College. I remember wondering if I'd end up in a group of students who were well-informed in Talmudical hermeneutics, leaving me with nothing much to contribute apart from 'That text just makes me really uncomfortable.' Also, I wondered about the online format. Would it all be technical and distant? Despite those misgivings, I decided to give it a go. I'm so glad that I did.

The format worked extremely well. The use of Zoom to connect us all produced very few hitches. We could see and hear each other clearly so it felt as if we were gathered around a table, poring over the selected texts and puzzling about them together. My fellow students brought diverse insights to the texts, drawn from their studies, experiences and reflections and we treated each other's contributions with interest and respect. Over time we really began to feel like a community of inquiry. ”

“ The best course of the several I have taken in the two years since I moved to London. ”

“ The teacher provided excellent teaching materials and in particular, great illustrations. She explained everything very clearly and was happy to answer any questions by email after the sessions and to suggest further reading. She really provided insights into a topic I must admit I was at first a bit doubtful about and made me want to learn more. ”
